Norfolk - Jim McCaa recovers $25,000 for insurance carrier against furnace installer in pastor's claim for personal property damages caused by church parsonage fire. Cause and origin, and engineering experts determined that when electric furnace at parsonage was replaced with gas furnace more than 5 years before the fire, the installers of gas furnace left energized wiring, which was previously attached to the replaced electric furnace, in a metal junction box attached to a wooden ceiling joist in furnace room, which eventually caused the metal junction box to become energized and heated to the extent that the wooden joist caught fire.
