PRESS RELEASE

Taylor & Walker Associate Todd M. Gaynor served as coordinator and presenter at the "Employment Law 101 for Human Resource Professionals."

June 14, 2006

Norfolk - Taylor and Walker Employment Litigation Practice Group Associate Todd M. Gaynor served as coordinator and presenter at the "Employment Law 101 for Human Resource Professionals." The event was sponsored by Taylor and Walker, P.C. and Nowcare Health and Safety. Speakers from the legal and medical fields provided employers an opportunity to review changes in employment laws and strategies for protecting their business and maximizing employer/employee relations. Mr. Gaynor lectured on the following topics: "An Overview of Federal and State Law Concerning Workplace Drug and Alcohol Testing", "Employment Law Litigation from a Defense Perspective" and "Common Employer Mistakes." Christopher J. Wiemken, Taylor and Walker Partner, spoke on "Documenting Employment Problems and Conducting Performance Evaluations" and "Conducting Effective Workplace Investigations." Donna White Kearney, Taylor and Walker Partner, addressed "Understanding the Interplay of the ADA, FMLA and Workers Compensation." In addition, the seminar offered a round table panel discussion of the latest changes in employment law and their impact on the business community.
