PRESS RELEASE

Personal Injury Verdict Reflects Dismissal of Plaintiff's Claimed Injuries

November 19, 2004

Norfolk -- In the case of Rashad Chapman vs. Carolyn Joyner, the plaintiff claimed over $4,800.00 in medical expenses following a rear end collision. Liability was admitted at trial, but plaintiff's claimed injuries to his hand, lower back and neck were challenged. The plaintiff's treating orthopaedic surgeon was cross-examined at length during the trial and the emergency room physician was called as witness for the defense. At the conclusion of the trial a Suffolk Circuit Court jury returned the verdict requested by Taylor & Walker defense counsel Dave Littel, a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the amount of $0.00.
